JAPAN'S MARKET GOING MOBILE

TOKYO—Figures from the Japanese Society for Rights of Authors, Composers and Publishers confirm the ongoing decline of physical sales in the world's second-largest music market—but they also offer hopeful signs from the mobile music sector.

According to JASRAC, mechanical royalties from CD sales accounted for less than 25% of its annual collections in 2004/2005, although fees from ringtones kept revenue on the rise.

Total copyright fee collections by JASRAC for the 12 months ending March 31, 2005, rose 1.2% to 110.8 billion yen ($1 billion).

Mechanical royalties from CD sales in the year were 26.8 billion yen ($248 million), representing 24.2% of JASRAC's total collections. Just four years ago (year ending March 31, 2001), that percentage was 35.5%, or 37.7 billion yen—equal to $307.7 million at that time.

However, JASRAC reported a 10.2% increase in income from “interactive/compound-use sources” to 15.2 billion yen ($140.5 million) for the year. That revenue comes mainly from downloadable ringtones and online karaoke services. It represented 8.4% of the society's collections in 2004/2005; in 2001, such royalties accounted for slightly more than 1%.

“Within the next five to 10 years, income from performance, mechanical and interactive [royalties] will each account for one-third of JASRAC's collections,” predicts Ichiro Asatsuma, president of leading Japanese publisher Fujipacific Music.

The interactive category included ringtone royalties of 7.9 billion yen ($73 million), up 3.9%, plus master ringtone royalties of 806.7 million yen ($7.3 million)—a staggering 384.4% increase.

One publishing source says he expects interactive fees to continue their rapid growth at least for the next few years.

“[In the near future] we will have more ‘interactive’ revenue, particularly from mobile-related music use,” affirms Kazuo Munakata, managing director of BMG Funhouse Music Publishing.

With increasing broadcast opportunities likely to raise the income from performance rights, Asatsuma says, an alternative prediction could be “performance fees with a 50% share, and the other 50% split between mechanicals and interactive.”

Performance-right collections rose 4% to 45.1 billion yen ($417 million) during the year, boosted by a 13.6% rise in broadcasting royalties.

Mechanical fee collections from all formats, ranging from vinyl to DVD, were down 3.8% to 44.2 billion yen ($409 million), mainly because of the decline in CD sales. ●●●

Why I Rock - Beauty School Dropouts

By Matt Ingle

With cheesecake-y attractions like Tammy Faye Starlight and Atomic Blonde occupying this space in recent weeks, you have every right to assume ATR is on some kind of girl power trend — especially when we next turn our attention to a group named Beauty School Dropouts.

Alas, BSD, an up-and-coming Nashville rock outfit, happens to be made up of four unarguably male figures. Although the "unarguably" part is arguable (read on).

Formed just over a year ago, BSD has already signed a deal with Windswept Publishing, released an EP independently and, thanks to an electrifying live show complete with beauty school-esque makeup and the occasional salon chair, gained a loyal and exponentially increasing fanbase.

ATR sat down with the Dropouts — Josh Baker, Jimmy Chandler, Nick "Jagger" Colman and Jeremy McNeil — in the wee hours of the morning (10am — about four hours past their usual bedtime) at the 21st Avenue Starbucks to discuss the Nashville rock scene, their mothers, and a possible career at Tootsie's.

ATR: OK, The Beauty School Dropouts? Who thought that was a good idea for a band name?

Josh: It's actually the name of a font. I was just scrolling through a bunch of fonts and saw that one was named "Beauty School Dropout," and it stuck.

Jimmy: And with a band name like that, it gives us all the excuses in the world to get decked out in makeup and bring out hair dryer chairs and all that when we do live shows.

ATR: Are people who come to your shows ever surprised to find out a band with a name like yours consists of four dudes?

Jimmy: I'm not sure. But I've been confused for a girl more than a few times, so maybe they can't tell the difference.

ATR: Not many heavy alt-rock bands out of Nashville have earned a lot of national recognition. Is that discouraging?

Nick: It's been quiet for a long time, but the rock scene here is about to blow up. We love the culture and the talent here, and it's awesome to be a part of something that's becoming bigger, especially when all the local bands support each other like they do.

Josh: We left for California a couple years ago because I thought the scene here was horrible, but when I came back, it seemed like bands — really good rock bands — were popping up everywhere.

Jimmy: And when so many bands in one area start becoming such an attraction, that's when record labels start to pay attention. We've showcased our stuff to several different labels in L.A. and New York, and there are important people in the music industry who seem to really like what we're doing, so that's been encouraging. It's corny, but music is all that we have, so it's been our job to put out the best stuff we can and hope that the right person hears it.

Josh: Usually, the true test of whether a song is quality or not is when we play it for my mom. If she likes it, then we know it's good.

Nick: All of our moms are incredibly supportive as well. So we'll always have that going for us.

ATR: Any local bands who have been particularly supportive?

Nick: The guys in Kings of Leon have been awesome to us.

Jimmy: And bands like Luna Halo and Ligion, who are both on the verge of becoming pretty huge, have helped us out by giving us places to play and hooking us up with connections.

Jeremy: This community is full of artists who are so incredibly talented and still willing to help young, new bands like us get our feet off the ground.

ATR: There are a lot of artists doing the same things as you with the same aspirations. How do you plan to survive in this business?

Jimmy: Well, we don't mind selling out. If we ever do achieve major success, we will be hated by tons of rock bands. If we write a song that sounds like Ryan Cabrera but we like it, we're going to play it.

Josh: Most of our stuff is pretty heavy, but if we recorded a piano ballad — which we recently did — and we liked it, we'll throw it in the mix somewhere to keep things diverse.

Jeremy: We'll even play shows at Tootsie's.

Jimmy: Yes, possibly the first rock band to ever grace the stage at Tootsie's.

Nick: But we ended up busting out country tunes by the end of the night anyway, so there's a possibility we could always pick up a gig there with the regulars if the whole rock thing doesn't work out.

Aussie singer/songwriter Delta Goodrem joins a short list of entertainers with the goods to endure for as long as she chooses. U.S. debut single "Lost Without You" is a powerful, piano-driven anthem with superglue hooks, radiant vocals and tempo-flourishing acoustic production. At home, Goodrem is the most acclaimed new female singer in history: seven No. 1 singles and eight Australian Record Industry Assn. Awards, all in little more than a year. Now, after nearly as long in development stateside, Columbia launches this tigress of talent. She's gorgeous and graceful, youthful and she writes and plays . . . boy, is the United States primed for a true, gimmick-free talent. Welcome 2005's best new artist.—CT
